New IRTS Web Site

In last week's news, we announced the launch of the re-designed web site at www.irts.ie Over the next few weeks, we will highlight some of the new features of this site. For this week, we look at the "downloads" page. This has the following files available for downloading:

A sample IRTS Newsletter: this is aimed at prospective members, to show what "Echo Ireland", which is posted regularly to members, looks like.

A blank IRTS membership application form: as an alternative to this, the "Join Us" link on the web site will produce a membership application form with your name, address and call sign pre-printed on the form.

A blank direct debit mandate: Existing members who are paying by cheque should consider paying the annual membership subscription by direct debit, to make life a lot easier for themselves and for the volunteer officers of the Society, as well as saving on postage.

The IRTS Constitution and Rules, which sets out the aims of the Society and the way in which it is managed.

Examination notes with sample paper: This is essential reading for anyone studying for the Radio Theory exam, and for those who are teaching radio theory.

The detailed HAREC (Harmonised Amateur Radio Examination Certificate) examination syllabus - again this is essential reading for students and teachers of radio theory.

The detailed provisions behind CEPT licences for visitors: this includes a full list of prefixes for each CEPT area, and therefore of interest to anyone planning to operate abroad.

HF and VHF band plans for IARU Region 1: of particular note is the fact that there have been some changes in band plans, with new frequencies for emergency centres of activity and some adjustments to recommended modes within the bands.

All of these downloads are in the form of PDF files, which can be read with the free Adobe Reader: a link to download this program is included in the downloads page.

AREN Training

Following February's Introduction to Emergency Situations, March's on air session will focus on ARENs response to such an emergency. It will describe the upcoming field exercise "Operation Blackwater" and prepare members for the event. The exercise, which takes place in April, will address specific communications issues encountered by some of the emergency services last year during a simulated major accident on the N25. This is an opportunity for members to test their readiness to deploy in an on site-situation.

The on air training session will take place on the 25th of March at 0930 hrs using the primary frequency of 3.690 MHz and secondary of 7.099 MHz. The subsequent field exercise will be held on April the 15th next.
